

Imperatives of Population and Health Communication to Human Race

Zino D. Akpor

Abstract Communication plays a vital role in any human engagement and a lot of problems which most times are avoidable have faced societies around the globe due to breakdown in communication. Communication no doubt keeps the wheel of a society and lack of it may be a clog in the progress and wellbeing of a society. Health and population issues are also keys to the survival of the human race since health matters if not properly put in the right perspective will definitely affect the lives of members of the society. It is in view of this that this paper examines the importance of communication issues on health and population and how such information can ultimately benefit the society at large.

Key words: Human engagement, Population issues, Human race, Health matters, Communication issues

Introduction

Communication remains a potent tool for an individual, group and organization to express their feelings, worth, ideas and programmes. Over time, people have been searching for better ways to convey their message to their audience. Man has to communicate with other people in his society to make him functional. As a biological and social animal, humans relate with one another effectively through